How State Must Proceed.

An attache of the State Department informed the Washington correspondent of The Times-Dispatch last night that there need be no delay in forwarding to Governor Swanson the necessary authority to bring Miller from London.

essary authority to bring Miller from London.

The papers may be vised by the British authorities, but it is possible and entirely proper to send them to the Foreign Office at London. In the latter case there might be considerable delay, so it is likely, therefore, that the papers may be signed by Ambassador Bryce, who is still in New England. If the papers are all right department officials say that officers should be able to start for Miller by this time next week.

There does not seem to be any evidence here to prove that Miller was ever actually in Richmond. There are witnesses, however, who claim to have seen him at Gordonsville, and as the New York authorities are not anxious to deal with him the chances are that he will be brought to this city for safekeeping, and then sent to Orange country for trial.
